Multi-wall Bag Firm Names New General Manager

Multi-wall bag operations of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Co. are being given full divisional status because of their growing importance in the company picture, it was announced today by David L. Lukes III, executive vice president.

Victor S. Luke, who has had wide experience in administration, operations and sales with two of the company's papermaking divisions, has been named manager of the Multi-wall division. He will be responsible for all aspects of the Multi-wall Bag Division's activities, which are organized on a regional basis.

The Multi-wall division operates plants at Torrance, New Orleans, St. Louis, and Wellsburg, W. Va., and a multi-wall packaging laboratory in Charleston, S. C.

Horkey-Moore Wins Missile Launching Pact

The Air research and Development Command's Air Force Special Weapons center in Albuquerque recently awarded a contract to Horkey-Moore Associates of Torrance for development of a universal two-point suspension and launching system for bombs and air-launched missiles.

The equipment will be used in current and next-generation bombers. To be developed by Horkey-Moore's Armament Group at the Torrance plant, the system will incorporate special devices and force-ejection principles developed by his firm, according to E. J. Horkey, president.
